

Submission of Anecdotes

The process for submitting your short narratives of an interesting, amusing, or biographical incident involving your Italian ancestors is easy. Simply e-mail the narrative as an MS Word file to Dan Miller at dan@italianamericanheritage.org.

That's the easy part. There are some considerations that are not quite that simple, however. They involve protecting YOUR rights to copyrighted materials.

Dan and Joyce Miller are the co-owners of Integrated Writer Services, LLC (IWS) that is the owner of the domain name (URL) and copyright owner of the website www.italianamericanheritage.org, which is maintained as a service to the Italian American community in Colorado. Since copyright clearance is one of the services IWS provides, the company is very aware of copyright issues associated with the posting on content on the Internet.

1. The narrative must be an original unpublished work that you personally have written. If it has been previously published, you might consider submitting it under the new "Articles and Excerpts" section.
2. The narrative should not be a paraphrase of something already published unless you are the sole person who holds the copyright for the original work that you are paraphrasing.
3. You will retain the copyright for the narrative submitted. Your name and a copyright statement of your ownership will be included on the website posting.
4. By submitting a manuscript, you give permission for Integrated Writer Services, LLC to indefinitely post the submitted narrative on www.italianamericanheritage.org. This permission is given gratis.
5. By submitting a manuscript, you give permission for Integrated Writer Services, LLC to use the narrative, with appropriate attribution and your copyright notice, in a published collection of anecdotes. This publication may be in print, digital, or both. This permission is given gratis.
6. Integrated Writer Services, LLC reserves the right to post or not to post your submission and include your submission in a published collection.

Please include the following statement in the e-mail containing your submission:
I accept the six conditions set forth in the "Submission of Anecdotes" document for the attached submission.

If you have any questions, send Dan e-mail at dan@italianamericanheritage.org or call at 303.564.4181.
